

Eighth Portsmouth Translation Conference

The changing face of translation

Park Building, University of Portsmouth
Saturday 8 November 2008

Translation has never been a more diverse profession, covering everything from instruction manuals to opera and film, from EU legislation to news reports and from poetry to planning applications. The Eighth Annual Portsmouth Translation Conference will bring together translation professionals, scholars and students to learn about the many faces of translation in today's fast-changing world.

For more information, including the conference programme and abstracts, see our website at www.port.ac.uk/translationconference

Registration is free for A Level students and undergraduates.

An activity of the National Network for Translation, funded by Routes into Languages.
